

Christine Fisette

Who am I?

All my life is about "grow and help grow!" As a person, I have enjoyed a certain number of successes and I have been resilient in turbulent times. It helped me to better understand from inside what you are going through. As an executive and business coach, I especially like to help people to be at the same time happier and more successful at work by becoming more conscious about their strengths and by developing new resources.

My 10 words: inspiring trust, authentic, curious, open-minded, forward-looking, intuitive, caring, sensitive, profound and original

My Values: growth, purpose & meaning, creativity, beauty and abundance

My pledge – Why I do what I do?

I feel a deep sense of accomplishment when I help people to grow or bounce back to live a happy, abundant and meaningful life.

What expertise I bring to GINPI clients ?

My main talent is to 'sense the potential and let grow' in the individual and team coaching I offer.

There are 3 chronological steps in the path I propose clients to redefine their vision of success:

- First, (re)discover what makes you happy.
- Then, express who you are and what's important to you through your work.
- Finally, you enjoy so much what you are doing that success finds you!

My clients are usually people who see their work as a way to accomplish themselves.

What have I realised?

During my 20 years of experience in executive coaching and leadership development at international level,

I am especially happy and proud to have helped many leaders to grow or bounce back in their professional and personal lives. On a personal note, I am also proud and grateful to have recreated the life that I wanted and be the mother of two happy and smart children!
